INTRODUCTIONS
Currently, the world is facing a new era marked by the trend of globalization. There are several factors that drive globalization, namely market drivers, cost drivers, government drivers, and competitive drivers. Other factors that drive globalization include revolutions in information and communication technology, globalization of markets. Global marketing is marketing activities by (global) companies that have (global) businesses with the same marketing strategies, markets, and products in various countries.

The phenomenon of globalization is something inevitable, something that must occur, in addition to providing economic benefits but also brings implications to many aspects of human life, which ultimately requires society to be able to adapt to the changes that occur. (Yuniarto, 2015).

Indirectly, the invitation to compete in the global market will increase new understanding for business people how to advance their products to countries in the world. (Yuliaty et al., 2020). Globalization is a challenge for all companies that want to enter the global market. Because with globalization, companies are required to implement global marketing strategies so that they will have an impact on competitive advantage in the local market, namely the market where the company's products are marketed. (Hasibuan & Aslami, 2022).

A company is said to have a competitive advantage when the company has something that competitors do not have. (Andriyanto & Nurjanah, 2016). Small and medium-sized enterprises must have the ability to build networks to enter the global market and participate in the international market. (Hidayanti & Alhadar, 2021). Some of the leading commodities that have great demand in the global market are the strengths of each country. (Husnah et al., 2022).

The global economy is formed by the push of various forces including: Technological change reflected in industrial migration/transfer from developed to developing countries. (Arifin, 2010). Industries can no longer compete in the global market by relying solely on price or product quality.
but must compete based on innovation, creativity and imagination. (Halim, 2020). Facing stronger competition in the global market, the government needs to play a role in creating a business network for entrepreneurs (Yulia, 2015).

In the era of globalization, more and more large-scale companies in Indonesia are competing with each other. This trend indicates increasingly sharp competition. In a competitive business environment, the company must have the ability to differentiate itself in the competition, in order to maintain the survival of the company.

Therefore, the opportunities that can be done to face the challenges of globalization through strategy are (Aryani, 2019). Strategic planning is "the one best way" to decide and implement strategies that can improve the competitiveness of each business unit. (Julita Sari & Nurmala, 2016). Competing requires a strategy. Each strategy is unique. There is no competition strategy, especially in business (Pangiuk, 2018).

Today, global marketing has expanded to all countries. Many foreign goods or products are sold in the market. On the other hand, with this global marketing, many countries feel benefited but there are also some countries that feel disadvantaged. The benefit in this case is to get additional income as foreign exchange. A country that cannot keep up with this globalization will result in minuses in various fields.

Based on the phenomenon of globalization, it is important for every company to have a strategic way of thinking, by measuring performance. The existence of performance measurement is expected to achieve improved performance through improvements implemented. Therefore, to face the dynamics of the global market, innovative strategies are needed, especially for the national industry as a strengthening of the country’s economy.

Strategy Planning

Strategic planning is a systematic process that an organization agrees upon and builds engagement among key stakeholders-about priorities that are essential to its mission and responsive to the operating environment. Planning (Julita Sari & Nurmala, 2016). Operationalize strategic planning with the support of adequate production technology, top leadership commitment and active participation from competent and professional employees. (Nawawi, 2012).

Contextually, the strategies that need to be implemented refer to global strategies (Aushafina & Giveraldy, 2018). Strategy Planning or Strategy Management that formulates and plans strategies to integrate quality concepts into the overall Corporate Strategy. (Ambarwati & Supardi, 2020). Competing requires a strategy. Each strategy is unique. There is no competition strategy, especially in economic endeavors, which is patent and can be a superior formula that suits all economic endeavors. Because every business has different needs, goals and environment.

Therefore, each business has a different strategy in meeting its daily needs. The difference is influenced by several factors: Market segmentation structure, Jenis usaha dan produk; Place position; Existence of major competitors; Pricing (Pangiuk, 2018).

Strategy is a planning process carried out by a company, a person, or a leader with a number of considerations in the form of internal and external factors in the company to achieve the desired goals so that it can excel from its competitors. (Maulidya et al., 2016). The strategic plan aims to optimize the achievement of the company's strategic goals and operational goals. (SANTOSO et al., 2022).
The foregoing is intended to show that not all companies must go international but must plan for growth and survival in an era of global competition. (Bilgics, 2017). Strategic planning begins with environmental observation, including monitoring, evaluating and gathering information from the external and internal environment. The goal is to identify the strategic factors that drive the organization's future plans. (SANTOSO et al., 2022). strategic planning, strategic training and development, strategic compensation and reward systems, strategic succession and strategic assessment. All these functions and processes try to integrate with the strategy. (Aryani, 2019).

Every businessman wants his business to succeed and survive. There are certain tips for businesses to survive despite the storms. Here's a strategy to keep your business afloat (Neng Frida, 2020). Yaitu antara lain:

1) Have high self-confidence and independence. Every businessman must have high self-confidence. Every business whatever is done certainly has a risk factor. Without high confidence the business cannot run because it does not dare to bear all the risks. If you already have confidence, even with a small capital you can start a business. A businessman must also have an entrepreneurial mentality and high independence so that he is not lazy in running his business. Entrepreneurial mentality is very important, because in running a business, of course a businessman will experience various problems, so he is ready to fall up and down in building his business. If you don't have an entrepreneurial mentality, you can be sure that the businessman will despair and go out of business.

2) Doing halal business, starting from capital, process, to sales. Business capital is very important, but it must be obtained in a good way, not cheating. The process of doing business is also carried out in good ways as well, honestly, not monopolizing, and cheating. Basically, if you cheat, the impact is back on yourself. In addition, what is no less important is that the goods traded are goods that are halal, good, and do not harm the human body.

3) Export and import goods. Businessmen must have a wide market share. By Export and import goods. Businessmen must have a wide market share. By exporting and importing goods, it means that you have expanded your market share. The wider the market share created, the greater the sales target and the profit earned. A businessman must be creative in finding and creating market opportunities, increasing productivity and efficiency.

4) Maintain the trust of business relations. This is very important for the back and forth of the business being carried out. Maintain the trust of business relations by maintaining the quality of goods and also keeping payments in accordance with the specified time. The method used to maintain customer trust is to provide good and satisfying service. Also the goods sold are of good quality and have no defects.

5) Promoting traded goods, namely by making advertisements both in electronic and print media. In the current era, promotion can be done easily, namely through social media which has a very large and broad following, can reach various parts of the world. With this promotion, potential consumers can find out the quality, shape, and price of the commodities offered. Promotion can attract more consumers by providing tasters and price discounts at the beginning of product launching.

6) Doing business with basic necessities. A very promising business is the basic necessities business. This is because basic necessities have two characteristics, namely doing export and import activities, it means that it has expanded the Leadership. A leader must have a leadership spirit, be easy to communication with others, and open to suggestions and criticism. This is for the betterment of the business. Without good leadership a business will not be successful.

7) Suggestions and criticisms are welcome so that the business is always innovative, creative, and flexible.

8) Using information technology in doing business. Nowadays, people are getting used to digital consumption. With online shopping services, the community will be greatly helped, and this is also an opportunity for business people to serve and attract as many consumers as possible. Another strategy to pursue expansion is to introduce new items. The importance of new product introduction can be attributed to three factors:
a. To entertain some other untapped segments
b. To fulfill the unmet needs of consumers from some previous products or by competing products
c. As a means of customization to fit a particular market segment. In general, the product life cycle is the driving force behind the introduction of new products. Short-lived items will be replaced by new ones from rival companies (Maulidya et al., 2016).

Of course, there are still many things that must be done to face global challenges, especially in the current and future years. One of the fundamental elements of identity and existence is realized in relevant strategic planning. Contextually, the strategies that need to be implemented refer to global strategies, especially in the National Industry.

Likewise, competitive analysis must be the core of the strategic plan. To win the competition, it is necessary to maintain a position in the existing market with expertise that includes engineering excellence or technical expertise or an ability to respond to changes quickly and effectively. (Arifin, 2010). While competitive advantage is the ability to produce products at low cost and quality, making it possible to sell at competitive prices. (Swabawa et al., 2020).

Industrial development in Indonesia has made a major contribution to the national economy ranging from production output, employment, to foreign exchange earnings. (Pujiono et al., 2018). The challenge of global companies is to be good at strategizing in order to achieve success in business. A good business strategy is a strategy that can produce increased "business results" such as increasing profits, growing market share, satisfactory return on investment and others. (Arifin, 2010).

After the strategy has been carefully designed, it is only then that the container that will support the creation of the strategy is considered. This is where the importance of the role of the organizational structure and its staff becomes very decisive. So the mindset that strategizing first and then the structure is formed is a new thought in the new paradigm that business people need to pay attention to. Implementation of Innovative Strategies for National Industries in Facing Global Market Dynamics

Peter Drucker argues that innovation is a specific function of entrepreneurship, whether in existing businesses, public service institutions, or new ventures demonstrated by a single individual. (Bilgies, 2017). Therefore, companies must be more creative and innovative by offering products or services that are of greater value. (Pitoy et al., 2016). This is what is demanded by the market that is the focus or target for competition. In general, companies strive to meet consumer expectations, by building trust in a long-term relationship between the company and its customers.

Innovation will lead to the formation of competitiveness in an industry in a particular region. (Asmara & Rahayu, 2019). Adaptation and Innovation can actually still be applied to a variety of conditions and different places and times as long as it is based on an understanding of the problems felt in the perspective of consumers, including adjustments to the impact of a policy that is in effect in order to present the ability to carry out the business activities of each industry. (Taufik et al., 2021).

In addition, production innovation drives the superiority of business competitiveness, also determined by (agile-based management strategy); namely the application of a basic strategy of managerial agility and agility in serving the community or consumers. (Nawawi, 2012). Companies should strive to achieve sustainable competitive advantage which means showing the company's efforts in the long term that are able to maintain a competitive advantage position in the industry. (Mubarok, 2014).

Competitive advantage is the ability to produce products at low cost and quality, making it possible to sell at competitive prices. (Swabawa et al., 2020). Increasingly high levels of innovation, regarding the speed, availability and cost-effectiveness of international communications. All of which need to be considered before becoming a player in the global marketplace among the forces at play. (Arifin, 2010).

Significant economic contribution, positive business climate, up-to-date resource-based, sustainable innovation and creativity, as well as competitive advantage and positive impact on society. (Hidayanti & Alhadar, 2021). Innovation will have a huge advantage in global trade (Husnah et al., 2022).

There are several objectives in global marketing in helping world trade, namely:
a) Improve the Competence of Entrepreneurs

Global marketing has a goal to increase the competence or expertise of every entrepreneur to be able to find and get various new ideas and knowledge in terms of selling their products to the public. These competencies will be clearly visible about who are competent and less competent entrepreneurs.

b) Survival

Another goal of global marketing is to survive and to meet the basic needs of every community. Why? Because every entrepreneur will always be required to be able to get new ideas and innovate in doing their marketing. Some basic strategies include:

1) National industrial development that focuses on the development of priority industries in order to meet the ASEAN market; industrial development in order to secure the domestic market. Furthermore, the development of small and medium industries; human resource development and research; and the implementation of Indonesian National Standards (SNI).

2) Agricultural development, focusing on increasing direct investment in the agricultural sector, and improving market access.

3) Marine and fisheries development, with a focus on strengthening marine and fisheries institutions and positions; strengthening marine and fisheries competitiveness; strengthening domestic markets; and strengthening and improving export markets.

4) Energy development, focusing on developing the electricity sub-sector and reducing the use of fossil energy (fuel oil); new, renewable energy and energy conservation sub-sectors; and increasing energy and electricity supply in order to compete with countries that have better infrastructure. (Nurhayati, 2015).

These new ideas are essential when there is no longer adequate survival in society. It's important to note that many communities are in dire need of global marketing to survive and make a better life.

CONCLUSION

The presence of globalization is a necessity that cannot be avoided, along with advances in science and technology, globalization has a considerable influence in all aspects of life, both positive and negative influences. One of the benefits of globalization is the increase in economic productivity, which means that we can produce more with the same amount of effort.

Therefore, the next step that must be taken is to develop innovative strategies to strengthen the country's position in the global arena from various fields. One of the fields that has the most extensive implications for the development of globalization is the national industry. Among them is the development of national industries that focus on the development of priority industries in order to meet the market.
